DARK SIDE OF THE TOMB

After tackling "Gods and Monsters," Brendan Fraser is battling an entirely different creature this spring. In addition to starring in the movie "The Mummy" (opening May 7), he narrates the Discovery Channel's Mummies: The Real Story (May 5, 9 P.M./ET). The 30-year-old actor, who grew up all over Europe, has long been fascinated with mummies: "As a kid, we'd visit the British Museum, and I would see these tiny little dried-out bodies of people, and I always wondered who were they." The Discovery Channel documentary explores the history of mummification as well as how it is practiced today. "Believe it or not," Fraser says, "for $50,000 it is possible to have yourself mummified. People even have their pets mummified! It's so frightening!"

Even more frightening, Fraser says, is "The Mummy." He plays an explorer who stumbles on an ancient tomb and awakens a mummy, who goes on a reign of terror. "This is not your father's mummy. He's not the guy stumbling around in the dark, wrapped in bandages, chasing some poor hapless twit. This mummy is fierce and intelligent."

Next up for Fraser, who is married to former actress Afton Fraser, is the upcoming "Dudley Do-Right," a live-action adaptation of the classic Jay Ward cartoon. Fraser has already played the big-screen version of another Ward character in "George of the Jungle" and would consider a third. "They're making 'Rocky and Bullwinkle' already, so that's out," he says. "Maybe Tom Slick? How about Super Chicken? You think they'd let me? I don't know if they'd buy that one."

TRIBUTE

LUCILLE KALLEN

After studying to be a classical pianist at Juilliard, Lucille Kallen found herself working in a new medium called television in the early 1950s. Writing for two up-and-comers named Sid Caesar and Imogene Coca, Kallen, who died January 18 of cancer at age 76, became a legend: the sole female writer in the testosterone-thick, genius-filled madhouse that was the funniest place on the planet—the writer's room of Your Show of Shows. "She was the queen of the roost," remembers Carl Reiner, who later used Kallen as a model for The Dick Van Dyke Show's Sally Rogers. "She also had the pencil and the yellow pad. Mel Tolkin was the head writer, but nothing got on the page that she didn't like," he adds. Kallen specialized in the great Caesar-Coca married-couple sketches about "human relationships and what goes into making a dysfunctional one," Reiner says. Eventually she left show business to raise a family and write plays and novels, including the popular C.B. Greenfield mystery series. But it is as one of Caesar's writers that Lucille Kallen will be best remembered. "It was a pleasure to make her laugh," Reiner fondly recalls, "and we knew we had something good when she laughed because she was very serious about comedy." —Ed Weiner

DOUBLE DUTY

If he looks familiar, maybe it's because Michael B. Silver has recurring roles on ABC's NYPD Blue (as assistant district attorney Leo Cohen) and NBC's ER (as psych resident Paul Myers). This week Silver appears on both series, and he's not worried the double exposure will confuse audiences. "They'll say, 'More, more, more. Give him his own show,'" jokes the actor, who also guest-starred on an X-Files two-parter last fall.

The grandson of Academy Award-winning screenwriter

Sidney Buchman ("Mr. Smith Goes to Washington"), Silver is also working on "29 Palms," a thriller "about a young marine" that he wrote and plans to direct. "My sister [Amanda Silver], who wrote 'The Hand That Rocks the Cradle,' has been helping develop that," says Silver, 31, who dates an actress he refuses to name. One thing he does say is that Cohen won't be making trademark NYPD Blue revelations anytime soon: "No one has given me any indication that [a nude scene] is going to happen, although people tease me about it. They ask if I am going to shave my butt." —A.V.

ON THE SPOT quick takes about commercial breaks

VINTAGE SNICKERS

Old TV characters never die, they just take commercial breaks: The Ricardos and the Kramdens hawk Pepsi, the Jetsons plug America Online and Radio Shack, and Mr. Magoo uses a MasterCard. Now the makers of Snickers candy bars have recruited one of the most implausibly durable TV characters of all.

In a new entry in the company's "Hungry? Why Wait?" series (created by the BBDO New York ad agency), an elegant woman in black (above) waits in vain for a long-lost

"little buddy." She then opens a locket to reveal a photo of the sailor-hatted nincompoop from Gilligan's Island (right). He was only to be gone, she intones as if reciting Chekhov, for a "three-hour tour."

"We were trying to think of people who have been forced to endure long waits and Gilligan immediately came to mind," says Will Boudreau, a BBDO senior vice president. "We figured Gilligan was a character everyone would remember."

But even Gilligan doesn't come cheap. "Folks may think we're saving money by using an established cultural reference," says Boudreau, "but they should see how much it costs for the rights."

MADSEN'S AVENUE

Virginia Madsen was convinced she had hit rock bottom when she was offered a part on CBS's Unsolved Mysteries (Fridays, 9 P.M./ET). "I thought they were offering me a reenactment," says the 37-year-old actress. But when she heard that producers wanted her to cohost with Robert Stack, she jumped at the chance. "My friends and I are so into that show. It's this cult thing. We're always discussing, Will [Stack] ever wear a different trench coat?" says Madsen, who put her career on hold four and a half years ago after giving birth to son Jack (with then boyfriend Antonio Sabáto Jr.). "I wasn't going to do any acting until something that I really loved came along. If I hadn't waited, I'd be off in some other country doing this bizarre murder mystery and taking off my clothes." Now single, Madsen will also reappear on NBC's Frasier as Cassandra Stone, the radio-show's publicist and a love interest for Kelsey Grammer's character, on May 6 and May 20. Will she return next season? "Well, they didn't kill me, so I figure there is room for my character to come back." —A.V.

insider joke

TANGLED UP IN BLUE

My wife, an elementary-school teacher, tossed her book bag onto the kitchen table, sending the salt-shaker flying.

"Why don't you run it for me?" I said.

"I don't want to run it for you. I want tea."

"Sounds like a plan," I said.

"You're doing it again," she said. "You're talking like you're NYPD Blue's Andy Sipowicz."

"You're home two minutes and already breakin' shoes."

"You wanna hear this or not?" she asked. "Mosley, the principal, comes into my room at 3 o'clock, when I'm at the end of my rope with one of my kids and asks me..."

"Would that be the same skell kid who defiled the boys' john the other day?"

She got up and poured herself some tea. "I'm not talking to you when you're like this."

"You gotta get that kid in the system."

"Anyway, Mosley interrupts me to say that my paperwork on the integrated-learning system is overdue."

"Your DD-Fives? Like the school's gonna grind to a halt if this mope don't get his Fives."

"Something like that."

ting old," she said, glaring at me. "Real old." I put my

She blew softly into her teacup.

"Maybe this thing's off your sit-down with Mosley a couple weeks ago."

"Will you speak English?"

"The meeting when you broke balls."

"I don't think he's vindictive. Only anal-retentive."

"I think you gotta like him for being vindictive, too."

The conversation ground to a halt. I tried another approach. "Maybe you should reach out to the union attorneys," I said. "See if they want to get out in front on this."

"I don't think so."

"The shyllocks put pressure on this twitch and maybe get him to roll."

She took a long sip and poured the rest of her tea in the sink.

"You know, this is get-arms around her. "I'm sorry," I said. "The last thing I want to do is jam you up."

She pushed me away.

"Why don't you talk to the other teachers in the squad room?" I suggested.

"You know, canvass."

"You mean the teachers' lounge. I already did that."

"Maybe you could turn somebody on recanvass."

She tossed the towel at me. "I'm going upstairs," she said, "and don't bother following me."

I shrugged my shoulders.

"And I am not going to the union," she said, looking back over her shoulder, "for one very good reason."

"Which is?" I asked.

"Because," she said triumphantly, "I would never, ever lawyer up."

A BIG GESTURE

Connie Britton knows how to fill a room. When she signed on as honorary chairwoman of the Big Bam! Foundation's spring kickoff, the first thing she did was collar her Spin City castmates.

"I knew if Connie asked us to support something, it had to be important," said Faith Prince, who turned out for the fundraiser at New York City's Life nightclub along with Michael Boatman, Alan Ruck and former costar Carla Gugino. The Big Bam!, a one-year-old volunteer organization, promotes awareness of breast cancer in women under 40 and raises money for various caregiving groups.

For Britton, lending her star power was simply a matter of being there for a friend. The group's founder, 30-year-old breast-cancer survivor Janice Bonadio, was the star's boss back when she was a receptionist at a kids' gym, before her "Brothers McMullen" breakthrough in 1995. "It's important for me to be able to do something," said Britton; she's also Big Bam!'s spokeswoman and plans to help out with future events.

While the night, which included a fashion show by designer Veronica Bond, helped raise more than $10,000, Britton said it accomplished something equally important: "Having benefits like this helps remove fear. Young people can come to an event that's fun and learn how they can help save their lives—or the life of someone close to them."

showbiz buzz and celebrity scoop

BY MARK

So one of our staffers ran into Jerry Seinfeld (right) at Jose Eber's (the snazzy hair joint in Beverly Hills where cuts start at $100) and figured it would be a perfect time to get some tips from him for Tim Allen, who's about to retire from ABC's Home Improvement. This is what happened: "The first thing he said was, 'Well, it's not quite the same thing.' Then I touched his arm, and he looked at me like I had given him the Ebola virus. He stepped way back. I asked him again, and he said, 'I don't talk without speaking to my publicist.' I said, 'This is a joke, right? Not even good luck?' And he said, 'No.'" So our lady spy leaves for the crowded restaurant next door. Who walks in but Seinfeld? (Now we know what it's like to be stalked.) He gets seated right away. (Don't you hate that?) They put two menus in front of him and he waits...and gets stood up. "Couldn't happen to a nicer guy," says our spy.

MOVIE LOVE

Those lips at left belong to Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor, who fell in love and had a torrid affair while making 1963's "Cleopatra." Guess what? It has happened again. The stars of ABC's Cleopatra, Billy Zane and Leonor Varela (above), are an item. Sources say the two shared intimate meals on the set and have been dating since production ended in February (the movie airs May 23-24). "A little magic has happened between the two of them," says director Franc Roddam. PR stunt or true love? We'll find out when the ratings come out.

Guess who has been hired to play the never-before-seen father of Jarod (Michael T. Weiss) in NBC's The Pretender on May 22? It's George Lazenby (below), aka James Bond in "On Her Majesty's Secret Service." "I play an ex-major in the air force. A flyer," he says. "I know how to handle myself. Kind of an extension of a retired James Bond. I've been searching for Jarod for years, and we just bump into one another." Lazenby moved from Hawaii to Los Angeles a few years ago and is now "looking forward to doing a lot of work." By the way, who's his favorite 007 of them all? Sean Connery? Timothy Dalton? Pierce Brosnan? "No," he says. "I was the best."

We told you about TBS's August movie First Daughter, starring Monica Keena (below) of Dawson's Creek. The plot—the abduction of the president's daughter—sounded a little too familiar to Harry H. Howe, who wrote a screenplay titled "First Daughter" in 1996 and submitted it to Mandalay TV, which produced TBS's movie. "I'm talking to lawyers," says Howe. TBS says, "It's news to us."

cheers AND JEERS

CHEERS to winking at TV's cutthroat tactics. CBS's Diagnosis Murder spoofed its formidable Thursday competition, particularly Fox's popular crash-and-burn reality shows, with a barbed two-hour episode (April 29) making part of an apocryphal special, Maimings and Massacres and Practical Jokes. The episode featured campy cameos by the Masked Magician (a Fox staple), Tony Dow and Jerry Mathers—yes, Wally and the Beav—as well as Danny Bonaduce and Baywatch's Billy Warlock as a sexed-up-for-TV version of Dick Van Dyke's Dr. Mark Sloan. (A network tries to turn the sleuth's life into a hokey series titled Dr. Danger.) Prolific TV producer Stephen J. Cannell stole the show as a huckster who declared in an ironic in-joke, "How many car crashes can you watch before you're sick of them? What do you suppose happened to The A-Team?"

Dick and Barry Van Dyke with a magic quest

JEERS to leading us on. We recently (April 13) saw a moving ABC promo for the last episodes of Home Improvement. As a glorious pastiche of clips flashed on the screen, the narrative reminded us of all the funny, unique and poignant qualities we loved about the show and cautioned us not to miss the final chapters of this long-running comedy. OK, we were sold. We tuned in that night eager to be transported by the Tool Man and his Michigan meshuggeners. What did we get? A mediocre rerun centering around bland son Brad (Zachery Ty Bryan). Hey, ABC, next time you sell us a kettle of fish, make sure it's fresh.

JEERS to early departures. For our money, the most incandescent performer at VH1's Divas Live '99 (April 13) was the show opener, Tina Turner. That's why we were later disappointed when almost all the other singers retook the stage for the finale—but not Tina. What a gyp. And Jeer-within-a-Jeer to a narrow focus. It seemed that every time the Divas producer cut to an audience reaction shot, we found ourselves looking at All My Children's Susan Lucci. Did she bring her own camera? Now that would be true divahood.

CHEERS to putting the family first. A coalition of major advertisers has instituted a far-ranging program to foster and promote more family-friendly programming on television. The networks have often claimed that they don't schedule more wholesome fare in prime time because it doesn't attract the type of audience that advertisers most want to reach. But this coalition, whose members spend billions of dollars each year on network commercial time, has vowed to pay premium prices for exposure on shows that don't flaunt sex, violence or crude language. This venture is a bold and auspicious attempt by the business community to diversify and improve our viewing options.

A special delivery for Mother's Day.

THE Roush REVIEW

BY MATT ROUSH

Future Shock and Ancient Shtick

Only Matt Groening, the subversive wit who gave us The Simpsons, could so cleverly imagine the moon, 1,000 years hence, turned into a tacky theme park. Taking a cue from Disney's Pirates of the Caribbean, there's a silly Whalers of the Sea of Tranquility ride, which even Futurama's clueless hero Fry considers lame.

When Fry escapes to the moon's surface—"The line's short because it's educational," he's told—and visits the site of the first lunar landing, he acts just like the 20th-century transplanted tourist he is: "It's that flag from MTV!"

After a mildly amusing pilot, Fox's Futurama (Tuesdays, 8:30 P.M./ET) has quickly blasted off into the realm of the fantastic, both in terms of sci-fi and hilarity. With a richness of colorful design to match the satirical inventiveness of the humor, this madcap treat cheerfully adds robots, aliens and blobby monsters to Groening's mutant universe of animated misfits.

Comedically, nebbishy Fry and his one-eyed amazon sidekick, Leela, are small-fry compared to Bart and Homer, but Futurama has breakout potential in Bender, the cranky and larcenous robot. Fueled by booze, energized by rage and lust, Bender is probably not all that bad. He was just programmed that way. And that's fine by us.

Recently, The Simpsons pulled off a trilogy of fractured Old Testament tales, and there are times watching NBC's dim-witted Bible miniseries Noah's Ark (May 2 and 3; see "Flood Watch," page 34) that you'd swear Groening wrote it—if all of his jokes fell flat. Perhaps inspired by

Up, up and away: Leela, Bender, and Fry

Bill Cosby's

classic Noah routine but coming off more like a bad Mel Brooks movie, this epic aspires to use humor to avoid the deadly solemnity of those dry-as-dust TNT Bible movies.

But the vaudevillian banter between God and Jon Voight's Noah—God asks for the ark to be built "immediately, if not sooner"—is witless and tiresome. Ditto the Punch-and-Judy antics of Lot and his wife, and the numerous scenes of clumsy slapstick. The effects are generally so cheesy you'll rarely believe the animals are even sharing the boat.

This is one crass menagerie, adrift without dramatic heft or value.

with no feeling for this or any other generation. Big surprise, huh? Movies based on TV high concepts tend to be awful, from "Lost in Space" to "The Avengers," which I would have walked out on if I hadn't been on a plane. A plea: Leave our icons alone, and that includes the recently reported Charlie's Angels and Hawaii Five-O. What next, Glenn Close and Sally Field as the new Cagney and Lacey?

Roush RANT

Since you probably didn't see it, rest assured that the movie version of The Mod Squad was as awful as you heard, an incoherent and unpleasant-to-look-at bummer

calista keeps cool

The world watches what she eats (spinach), who she dates (Ben Stiller), and every move the Ally McBeal star makes. The latest: She's in love with Shakespeare Calista Flockhart's golden hazel eyes spark mischievously and a grin stretches her wide, curvy lips. The question that has piqued her playful side: If, as she says, her big dream was to work on Broadway, why did she ever go to Hollywood?

"I have no idea!" she says, pounding the table. "Take it back! Take it back! What was I thinking? What the hell was I thinking!"

Flockhart's motto: Work, play and live your life

Flockhart, 34, is sitting in a corner of the pastel-appointed restaurant of the Hotel Bel-Air in Los Angeles. She arrived minutes earlier wearing a knit cap and huge black sunglasses, her size 0 (yes, zero) frame lurking somewhere inside a baggy pair of cargo pants and a thick turtleneck sweater. As she talks, a young couple seated nearby stare and whisper. Waiters linger. One of them presents Flockhart with a menu; it's after 2 P.M. and the kitchen will stop serving lunch soon. She searches for something to eat. Soup? No. Salad? No. She's not really hungry after eating a late breakfast. Finally, she chooses her lunch: double cappuccino, tall orange juice.

A year ago, Flockhart's navigating a menu would hardly have been a noteworthy event for restaurant patrons and staff. People were more familiar with her role as the title character of Ally McBeal (Fox, Mondays, 9 P.M./ET), an ambivalent lawyer with a weakness for short skirts and odd fantasies. But the show's second season changed all that. The already wispy Flockhart seemed, improbably, to have lost weight. Rumors circulated saying she had been hospitalized for anorexia. Comics feasted on the story—news that she ate spinach for breakfast inspired more laughs than a Popeye cartoon—and supermarket tabloids cooked up one Calista tale after another: about her weight, her love affairs, even her housekeeping. Paparazzi snapped photos revealing Flockhart...walking her 8-year-old terrier mutt, Webster. To an outsider, the prying and ridicule might have seemed unbearable. But Flockhart says she has not only endured it, she's flourishing.

"I'm actually feeling really good," she says. "I'm not saying there weren't rocky moments in the recent past, but it's very easy, when it's happening to you, to not be affected by it."

This rainy afternoon, she is upbeat, smiling easily and even joking about her own press. Asked if she is dating Ben Stiller, as gossip columns insist, she says, "Yeah." Then she laughs. "Oh! Not 'Yeah, I'm dating Ben Stiller.' But yeah, according to the press I'm dating somebody new every other day. I get around! And I live vicariously through my rumors." (Stiller's publicist says the two are "just friends.") "Right now, my life is so full," Flockhart says. "I'm not preoccupied with kids and boyfriends and husbands. I'm not having any panic attacks."

Panic attacks? Those are Ally McBeal's specialty. While Ally's wobbly mien has struck a chord with audiences, Flockhart wonders how it will play when the character "gets a little older." The actress is under contract for three more years; after that, "I'll have to wait and see where I am." Where she is now is in the midst of an "absurd, perverse and twisted" show, as Flockhart describes it, "about really eccentric people going through their lives." It has become a hit, she says, because audiences perceive "whatever may be missing in their lives. Everybody fills in the blanks in different ways." This season, Ally has smooched a married ex-boyfriend, Billy

York (where, six years after graduating from Rutgers University with a theater degree, her big career break came in a 1994 revival of "The Glass Menagerie"). With all that, of course, comes more scrutiny of her personal life. But gossip certainly isn't going to drive her out of Hollywood. In 20 years' time "maybe I'll be producing, directing, writing, acting," Flockhart says. "Hopefully, I'll still be alive and well." ■

TV GUIDE MAY 1, 1999

how real is McBeal?

BY STEF McDONALD

In our quest to find out, TV Guide went to Ally's home base of Boston and grilled five real-life contemporaries—Amy Brown, 28, Andrea Cross, 27, Jocelyn Edwards, 29, Susan Graham, 28, and Jessica Nagle, 24. One's married; the others have boyfriends or, like Ally, they're still looking. One's a law student (at McBeal creator David E. Kelley's alma mater, Boston University); the others work in a variety of fields. Over a three-hour dinner, the women dished about everything from why Billy deserves the Dumpster to whether they identify with one of television's screwiest heroines.

TV GUIDE: What do you like about Ally?

Amy: It's nice to see someone screw up like she does—everybody's probably acted irrationally and done selfish things.

Andrea: I like her quirkiness and the show's. You sort of want to be in this fantasy world with her.

Susan: I used to find her really whiny. Now I think there's a lot more depth to her.

Jessica: I like the way she's always falling down, literally.

TVG: Do you sympathize with her?

Amy: Definitely when she's lonely. It's really hard to meet somebody. When she's walking down a rainy street in Boston... They really capture that feeling.

Andrea: Don't you think they show too much of it, though? I mean, she's on an empty street by herself every half hour.

Jocelyn: Well, it's a chance to play Vonda Shepard's music!

TVG: What about Calista Flockhart, who plays Ally? Everyone's been commenting about her weight.

Jocelyn: She didn't start out that thin. Andrea: It's not our business, but you notice. It's distracting.

Amy: I feel bad for her. Now she looks frail. The good thing is that her roommate, Renee, is voluptuous and loves it.

TVG: Getting back to the show, what do you think of Billy?

Jocelyn: He's a wimp.

Amy: If he were like the guy on The Practice [Dylan McDermott], then I could buy it. I almost think Fish is cute.

Jocelyn: Because he has a personality!

Andrea: Why are these two women

[Ally and Georgia] head-over-heels in love with Billy?

Jocelyn: He's Ally's first love and she can't have him.

Andrea: It's the forbidden fruit.

Jocelyn: And the fruit is in her office every day.

Susan: I would not be able to work with my former first love.

Jocelyn: And his wife. No way!

TVG: So are Billy and Ally destined to be together?

Everyone: No!

Jessica: Maybe last year I would have liked to see that but not now.

Andrea: When Ally had all these fantasies about him, that was good enough.

Susan: But Ally and Billy haven't really done anything yet. What's one kiss?

Jessica: They're portraying her as a weak woman. If Billy left his wife, I think Ally would find she's not really in love with him. She's in love with the idea of him.

TVG: Do you like Ally's new guy, Greg?

Amy: He's nice and cute but I want him to be a little more charismatic.

Jessica: It's good that they're not making an issue over the interracial relationship.

Andrea: It's the same with Fish and Ling. [And] what about that model guy? With the...

Jocelyn: Oh, that was so awesome.

Andrea: I liked that it was purely sexual.

TVG: And her near fling with a boy toy?

Susan: Being a 28-year-old woman, I thought, Wow, wouldn't it be cool if this 18-year-old hottie was flirting with me?

Andrea: But would you follow through? Ten years younger is too much for me.

Susan: Probably not. But how come it's OK for Whipper to date Fish but not for Ally to be dating the younger guy?

Jessica: It's different when you're older.

TVG: What about the interoffice dating?

Susan: I spend more hours at work than I do anywhere else, and I don't have many opportunities to meet people [elsewhere]. But the idea of dating someone at work is not something I want.

Andrea: It's a little extreme in that office. Elaine is the only one who hasn't gone out with someone at the firm.

TVG: Speaking of Elaine...

Jocelyn: I worked with someone like her. She was nosy and would say inappropriate things about sex that you just don't need to know. But I don't think she's out to hurt anybody.

Andrea: I loved when Elaine went out with the John Ritter character. Ally made the right decision not to go out with him.

Amy: Guys come and go, but friends are more important. I think Ally realized she cared about Elaine even though Elaine drives her crazy!

TVG: What about the new women in the office?

Amy: I really got a kick out of how Elaine, Ally and Georgia were being catty about Nelle [when she first joined the firm]. I think women sometimes do that and we don't really mean it.

Andrea: Sometimes? [Laughter from all]

Susan: Nelle and Ling helped to bring out those male characters who were on the back burner last season.

Amy: I love Ling.

Andrea: We want to be her!

Jocelyn: She's got some power, boy! Her lines are just amazing.

Amy: I love when they play that music with her entrances.

Andrea: And Ling's growl. They needed a character who's totally nasty.

Susan: Because Ally's too inhibited.

Jessica: I just want to know why Ling has to be so hard.

Amy: But they're both kind of the same in that they're lonely in a way. Back to the whole loneliness theme.

Andrea: They could have called the show Alone in Boston.

Susan: Or Sleepless in Boston.

TVG: So Ally's single, but is it realistic for her biological clock to be ticking?

Jessica: She's still young to be thinking so much about that.

Jocelyn: But I do know people who feel they're not on schedule: married [with] a house and children.

Andrea: But it's cool that she doesn't think about it every day.

TVG: Clearly the office is Ally's second home. What do you think of the firm?
Andrea: If any of these people worked in your office they'd annoy the hell out of you! But we enjoy watching them.
Jocelyn: I wish people could be as open and honest as they are, especially in court. Fish says exactly what he wants.
Amy: I think Fish is so cool because he's like a caricature of the bad man.
Jessica: I think most men are like that a little, but they're not allowed to say what he says. I want to see more of John Cage; he's my favorite.
TVG: How do you rate Ally's take on the law?
Amy: I'm sick of everybody winning.
Jessica [the law student]: My boyfriend's a lawyer and we'll talk about the show's legal aspects. But to me, it's a comedy. I get more upset when a show like Law & Order does something inaccurate, because they're trying to portray it as real.
TVG: What about that unisex bathroom?
Jessica: I don't like it.
Andrea: It doesn't seem outlandish to me. My college had coed bathrooms.
Jocelyn: There's some decent socializing going on in there!
Amy: Maybe if your office had nice bathrooms like that you'd hang out there.
TVG: Any opinions on Ally's short skirts?
Jocelyn: I don't think they'd [fly].
Susan: I like her calf-length skirts. Have you noticed she's been wearing them?
Jessica: I [interned] at a law firm and some women dressed questionably. But no judge would ever comment on it.
TVG: So to sum things up, is there anything you'd like to see on the show?
Andrea: I think they need another guy.
Amy: I'd like to see a total babe come in.
Jocelyn: An all-around great single guy.
Andrea: For Ally! ■

FLOOD WATCH

Not since George Burns had the lead in "Oh, God!" has the Deity been so adept with a punch line.

Noah [on God's plans to drench the human race]: "Did you decide what to do with us, Lord?"

God: "It was a difficult decision. I would have liked a second opinion, but who could I have asked?"

NOAH'S ARK

OK, so NBC's Noah's Ark takes some liberties with the good book. Didn't Cecil B. DeMille, in his fashion? This is a Noah for the times—irreverent, whimsical, equal parts Bible and borscht belt, as indebted to Bill Cosby's old stand-up routine as it is to Sunday school.

"God has to have humor," says executive producer Robert Halmi Sr. (Martin, Alice in Wonderland). "It would be horrible for him to have to look down on this earth without chuckling sometimes." Especially if he's looking down on the Noah set. On a busy August morning—after a downpour of real, actual rain—dozens of peasant-garbed men, women and children gather within a hieroglyph-covered temple. At the altar, a pagan priest with a very large knife is about to sacrifice a young virgin named Ruth (Sydney Poitier, daughter of Sidney) when a sound from on high stalls the bloody ritual. "Stop! Airplanes!" yells the exasperated director John Irvin. "A sacrifice is what I'll be doing if these planes don't stop."

Ship of dreams: the virtual ark

Such are the modern-day perils of shooting a biblical epic in an Australian air force hangar outside Melbourne. All Irvin and his Noah (Jon Voight) can do is wait out the intrusions. Surely DeMille never had such problems.

But some things don't change. Noah remains the 600-year-old man who frantically builds his ark, collecting two samples of every species and enduring the great deluge for 40 days and 40 nights. Of course, nowadays the story carries a barely veiled pro-ecology theme, and May sweeps month being what it is (when TV ad rates are determined), the tale gets an extra dollop of special effects—laden disasters (and don't blame yourself if you can't quote the chapter and verse in which a giant tomadoklike water spout appears, or if you seem to recall Sodom and Gomorrah falling after the flood). "The destruction of all human life, and other life as well, can be a very disturbing topic," Voight says with an understatement you probably won't find elsewhere in the miniseries. "And if you play it straight, it can be awfully overwhelming."

Irvin himself was skeptical of the project initially. "It wasn't love at first sight," he says. "I thought that a biblical epic would be problematic. I thought, Cecil B. DeMille. The audience would just laugh." Actress Mary Steenburgen also had doubts when offered the role of Noah's wife, Naamah. "When I took this role, people wondered, What is this?" Steenburgen says. "People initially questioned my judgment. But when I spoke to John Irvin, I understood what he was trying to do. I like being part of something that is not careful and not small and worried."

Small Noah isn't. More than 200 animals—llamas, ostriches, kangaroos, goats, water buffalo—were housed in a Melbourne hangar; hundreds more were filmed at a Melbourne zoo and ranches in Los Angeles and Texas. Their images were then digitally linked on-screen, creating the image of, say, an elephant walking just ahead of an ant. The ark, too, is a computer creation. The actual pinewood structure resembled nothing so much as a drive-in movie screen that would only later be digitally transformed into the seafaring zoo.

Computer technology also allowed filmmakers to add a few extra disasters to the story—earthquakes, volcanoes, even asteroidlike fireballs that destroy Sodom and Gomorrah, biblical inaccuracies notwithstanding. Other effects were created by more traditional means. The ark's sweeping interior—made from Oregon timber—was built within the aircraft hangar. A 60-by-100-foot facade of the ark's bow was constructed of wood and steel. Nearby, in a tank used in USA Network's miniseries Moby Dick, a village the size of a city block, with buildings as tall as three stories, was built and then flooded with 350 tons of water.

ham, who plays Noah's villainous friend Lot (yes, further dramatic license—the two don't share Bible pages), tries to impress the crew with a joke: "Two camels walk into a pub. The bartender says, 'Hey, kids, why the long faces?'" Polite laughter. Off on a walk by himself, a ponytailed Voight, costumed in crude peasant garb, is practicing his dialogue. Despite the story's newfound humor, the tale of Noah and how to play it are being given serious thought by the 60-year-old Oscar-winning (for "Coming Home") actor. He visits the animals each day after filming and today points to three camels. "The three of them are totally different characters," he says. "Each is going to respond quite differently from the others. You have to get to know them." He tries yet another way to get a grasp of this ancient tale's meaning. "It seems to me there is something true in this story," Voight says. "Almost every society has a story about a flood." Historically accurate or not, the tale can serve as a metaphor for any number of present-day situations, Voight continues, from the destruction of the environment to the crisis in Kosovo.

On this day of filming, though, nothing weightier than a stretch of silence would please director Irvin. Then, as suddenly as they arrived, the planes go quiet, and Irvin is able to complete a sweeping sequence in which Noah's sons (played by Alexis Denisof, Mark Bazeley and Jonathan Cake) burst into the temple to rescue the sacrificial virgin. The take completed, Irvin, for once, can't avoid paying homage to the Bible epics of the past. He smiles and says, "A great Cecil B. shot!" ■

ACADEMY OF COUNTRY
AWARDS

The Academy of Country Music doesn't stand on ceremony. Only 12 awards get handed out at the ACM's annual shindig at Hollywood's Universal Amphitheatre. The show doesn't even have a host. That leaves more time for crowd-pleasing performers like Garth Brooks, Faith Hill and our featured artists: Jo Dee Messina and the Wilkinsons. So strike up the bands!

TAKING

After a year of utter desperation, Jo Dee Messina's career has started to soar

Jo Dee Messina wants to be an actress, but on her own terms. The country-music sensation—whose platinum album, I'm Alright, has earned her three ACM nominations—is in a San Francisco bar filming a scene for the CBS cop drama Nash Bridges. Making her acting debut in the episode (scheduled to air Friday, April 30) as a sweet, struggling country singer isn't much of a stretch. But that's the way Messina wanted it. CBS initially offered her a juicier part—the sexy getaway driver for an all-girl robbery ring—but Messina politely declined.

"The character was too harsh," says the effervescent 28-year-old during a break in shooting. "I turned it down out of loyalty to the fans who have supported who I really am." And that loyalty was hard won. Just 17 months ago, Messina was on the verge of signing bankruptcy papers because, in a move considered career suicide, she had stopped releasing singles from her 1996 debut album, Jo Dee Messina.

Instead, she and her record producers—Byron Gallimore and country superstar Tim McGraw—focused on recording a stronger follow-

A brassy singer: Messina croons on Nash Bridges.

Born and raised in Holliston, Massachusetts, the half-Irish, half-Italian Messina was 4 when her parents divorced. From that point on, her mother, Mary, raised four children single-handedly while working as a switchboard operator and putting herself through school. Messina headed to Nashville at age 19.

Just prior to her money meltdown, Messina moved her mom there, too, and they shared a home. "When we were kids, Mom kept food on the table and a roof over our heads but never let on what a hard struggle it was. So I was determined to keep my desperate situation from her. Her time for worry was over." But Mom started to catch on near the end of '97. Says Messina: "Christmas was always a big deal in our family, so she got the gist of my crisis when I didn't put up a tree." Her eyes start to mist and she shakes her head wearily. "Oh, baby, you don't know how many nights God and I had to sit down and talk about a miracle."

And a miracle did occur. Her second album, I'm Alright, was released in March '98 and has so far sparked three consecutive multiweek No. 1 hits, a record for a female country artist. But even now Messina isn't quite financially solvent. Says the star, "I hope to be out of debt by this summer."

What about romance? Messina takes a slurp of diet soda and shrugs. "It's pretty nonexistent right now, which is OK. I had one really long and bad relationship, then dated a couple of other guys. But I don't have much luck with men." She is reticent to discuss her father, Vincent, who lives in Vermont. When pressed, Messina laughs and says, with no trace of bitterness, "He hits me up for a lot of concert tickets."

Messina begins to ruminate on how a kid from New England ever made it big in country music but is summoned back to the set. "Walk with me, will ya?" she says in the quasi-Southern drawl she has acquired. "People told me, 'Don't go to Nashville. They won't have anything to do with someone from the North.'" The Nash hairstylist poufs Messina's copper-colored curls. "But you know what? Nobody in Nashville ever asked where I was from." A makeup man comes at her with a brush to redefine her lips. Obliging him, she clams up for a moment, then stops him mid-stroke to conclude her thought. "Country music ain't about where you come from," she says. "It's about what's coming from your heart."

The leader of the Wilkinsons didn't go far to fill out his country trio—he recruited his son and daughter

BY RAY WEST

What's 26 cents worth these days? For the Wilkinsons, a family singing trio from the small Ontario town of Trenton, "26 Cents" has reaped dividends that would astonish Warren Buffett. The heartfelt song about a mother watching her child leave home is marked by the clan's refined harmonies and 17-year-old Amanda's expressive alto voice. The tune zoomed to the top of the country-music charts late last summer—an astounding success for a debut single by an unknown act. "26 Cents" spurred sales of the Wilkinsons' CD Nothing But Love, got them an opening spot on Alan Jackson's tour last fall and earned them three nominations at this week's ACM awards. "All in all," says Steve, the Wilkinsons' 43-year-old guitarist, songwriter and dad, "it's been an amazing year." Now, there's an understatement.

Not long ago, Steve

was ready to abandon music entirely. A carpenter by trade, he had written songs as a hobby for most of his adult life and liked to pick guitar around the kitchen table. Amanda began singing along when she was 9, and it wasn't long before 7-year-old Tyler (now 15) chimed in.

"Our ears were surgically attached to the radio when we were growing up," says Tyler. "We'd ask Dad to play a song we had heard and then we'd work up the harmony parts." Most of their repertoire was country music.

Their first performances were free shows at local senior-citizens homes. "They loved us," Amanda says with a laugh. "They'd pat us on the head and tell us how cute we were." The Wilkinsons' first paid gig, before a roomful of Masons and their wives at an Ontario lodge, wasn't as well received. Their set was met with a very short, subdued round of applause. "The kids were devastated," recalls Steve. "I turned to them and said, 'Boys and girls, this is what's called paying your dues.'"

But by late 1996, after four more dreary years of dues paying, Steve was ready to pack it in. "I figured we could pick up the music again when the kids got out of school," he says. Saddled with debt and bleak job prospects in their small town, he had decided to quit the music business and try to find full-time construction work in a nearby city. He called a family meeting in the kitchen to announce his plans. The vote from the rest of the Wilkinsons—including mom Chris and youngest daughter Kiaya, now 9, was unanimous: Think again, dad.

Together they elected to relocate to Nashville. "We were stuck somewhere between hope and a dream," says Steve, "and we needed to give it our best shot. As Chris said, the worst that could happen is to be asking 'what if' 10 years from now. None of us wanted to do that."

So they loaded a tent trailer with boxes—no room for furniture—hitched it to the back of a yellow Cadillac and drove south. Three weeks after they rented a bare apartment in the Nashville suburbs, the family went to a club to hear a song-writing buddy perform. They even went on-stage themselves for a few numbers. They must have made some impression. Before the weekend was over, seven ma-major labels were wrangling to sign the Wilkinsons to a recording contract.

On January 17, 1998—Amanda's 16th birthday—they went into the studio to cut their first album. By July, the single had been released and the Wilkinsons were performing before 60,000 people in Virginia Beach. "It was my dad and his guitar and Tyler and me," Amanda remembers. "We were singing '26 Cents,' and I looked out in the crowd and as far as I could see everybody was singing along: 'Here's a penny for your thoughts/ A quarter for the call/ And all of your Momma's love.' I just about lost it."

These days, the Wilkinsons are barnstorming the country on a bus along with their five-piece band. "It's like having a whole lot of big brothers," says Amanda. In such close quarters (Chris and Kiaya often join them on the bus), good manners, patience and headphones are essential. Besides country music, the kids like Collective Soul, Sloan, Sugar Ray and Keb' Mo'.

"They're good kids," Steve says proudly. "We've had to ground them a couple times for curfew violations. That's hard to do when you're traveling all over the country." Even on the road, the Wilkinsons can always call a family meeting. ■

TO BE YOUNG AND GAY IS NO LONGER
A PRIME-TIME
TABOO

BY FRANK DeCARO

They're young, they're gay, get tuned to it. Through the closet door flung open by Ellen two years ago, a small battalion of young homosexual characters are streaming into TV's most-talked-about dramas. Gay roles have been written for Dawson's Creek, in which Joey's (Katie Holmes) friend Jack McPhee (Kerr Smith) is coming to grips with his sexuality, and for Felicity, in which Ryan Crane (Eddie McClintock) recently came out to his brother, resident adviser Noel (Scott Foley). Though it turns out to be youthful experimentation and nothing more, lesbian issues are addressed when, in this week's (May 5) episode of Party of Five, Julia Salinger (Neve Campbell) exchanges a kiss with a female writer (Olivia d'Abo) visiting her college.

Hit TV shows have featured openly gay characters since Billy Crystal's hilarious (and sometimes heartbreaking) turn as Jodie Dallas on Soap in 1977. But only recently have TV producers begun to deal seriously with the concerns of teenage and twentysomething gay characters. Why now?

IN WITH THE OUT CROWD

"It's happening on TV because it happens in real life," says P.K. Simonds, a coexecutive producer of Party of Five. "Kids who go to high school know kids who deal with this issue. Issues of identity are very important to young people: figuring who they are, what they are inside and how they fit in. These stories are especially relevant to young audiences because they're about young people like themselves who are learning about themselves."

In that regard, the real trailblazer for this season's influx of gay youths was not Ellen Morgan, Ellen DeGeneres's headline-grabbing lesbian with a laugh track. For all the ink she may have generated, that sitcom character was still years older than this season's homeroom and dorm-room gays, who truly trace their pedigree to Rickie Vasquez (played by the openly gay actor Wilson Cruz) on the 1994-95 series My So-Called Life. "The response was incredible," remembers Winnie Holzman, creator of that short-lived but much-loved show. Cruz's presence, she says, "was a huge thing for many people. When there's a kind of person you don't usually see on TV and then you see them on TV and they're fully dimensional, it's a very powerful thing. I can't overestimate how empowering that is and how a part of things they start to feel."

That outreach aspect is not lost on the writers of this season's scripts. "It clearly does affect people," says Felicity's cocreator J.J. Abrams, who is also one of its executive producers. "It's really gratifying to see that someone out there who may have felt all alone being gay, watching our show or Dawson's Creek or any other show with this kind of story line, might find an emotional connection."

Sometimes that connection works both ways, with the gay character providing a producer a means to recall his own experiences growing up. "As a writer, I write stories that are personal to me," says Kevin Williamson, Dawson's Creek's creator and one of its executive producers. "I'm very much gay, so it would be very hard not to include that in my work."

Especially these days when, despite Hollywood's acceptance, being homosexual in many other parts of America can still incite violence. Though the murder of Matthew Shepard, a gay college student beaten to death in Wyoming, occurred after many of this season's gay story lines were already planned, the atrocity gave them increased relevance. "It brought a lot of sensitivity to the way we handled it," says Williamson of Dawson's Jack character. "It made it seem all the more important."

As with any prime-time innovation, these series' acknowledgment that some high school and college kids are gay has gained a lot of attention. Viewer feedback, according to producers, has been overwhelmingly positive. "For every few responses we get from people saying, 'Why did you have to put homosexuality on your show, I used to like you until you did that,' we get swarms of e-mails from people saying, 'It's about time!'" says Felicity's Abrams.

If anything, response has been so positive that producers are quick to point out these characters aren't just gay. Says

Party of Five story editor Allan Heinberg, who is gay: "People are concerned because they'd heard there was a lesbian kiss. But we're tackling a character issue for Julia, not just a gay issue." It is really, he says, about the young woman's search for comfort through her relationships, a personality trait we've seen manifested before and will see again.

Thanks to all the media attention, however, these episodes of Party of Five will surely attract the prurient interest of some audience members. Olivia d'Abo, who says she "was straight last time I checked," doesn't mind. "The most positive thing about it is that I think people will tune in," she says. "I hope even more people tune in to watch this big lesbian kiss who've never tuned in. Maybe it'll speak to some people who'll be educated about what's going on today." ■

An X-rated Performance

Some guys in Hollywood do keep a promise. In 1997, Signy Coleman (Guiding Light's Annie) starred as sensual FBI fugitive Susanne Modeski in "Unusual Suspects," one of the best and most popular installments of Fox's The X-Files. (Set in 1989, it revealed how Mulder met the Lone Gunmen, the show's three hilarious conspiracy geeks.) Midway through filming that episode, X-Files creator Chris Carter sent word to Coleman on the set that he was thrilled with the early footage and would someday bring her back. He makes good on that pledge with his May 2 episode, "Three of a Kind," in which Susanne and the Gunmen reunite in 1999 Las Vegas. Coleman says she's accustomed to moguls making promises they don't intend to keep. "But Chris is different," she notes. "He thinks far, far into the future, plotting the show like he's playing a chess game. The end of ['Three'] still leaves the door open for Susanne's return."

This got us thinking: If Coleman—a phenomenal actress—can land such cool and classy guest shots, what else is she missing out on by being contracted to a New York soap? Aren't these little tastes of the big time a bit crazy-making? "I spent so much time being frustrated when I was younger, I don't make time for it now," says the 30ish Coleman, who trained under legendary guru Peggy Feury. "Meg Ryan and Sean Penn were in my class. Then their careers exploded. I did Santa Barbara with Robin Wright. Her career exploded. Not that I put myself in their league, but there were times when I thought, 'Why not me?' But you know what? When age comes wisdom and peace. I believe our lives unfold the way they do for a reason." A single mom to an 8-year-old daughter, Siena, Coleman adds: "I am so lucky to have any kind of acting job. I could be busing dishes right now and getting goosed by rude customers."

Logan RAN

NBC's cancellation of Another World, which ends its run June 25, means more than the loss of a beloved, 35-year-old institution—it marks the dawning of a sad new day. Dramatically, AW is infinitely superior to Sunset Beach, the soap NBC has renewed. AW also outrates SB by nearly a million viewers, but they aren't the customers NBC covets. SB, which recently featured a plot about a talking dog, has suffered an 8 percent drop in female viewers 18-49. But NBC Entertainment president Scott Sassa stated in Variety that SB, which has had a 40 percent rise in female viewers 12-17, "seemed to have more momentum with younger viewers [than AW], so we went with it." Thus, a bunch of teens have brought down a program millions of adults—many of them seniors—have supported since 1964. Isn't that pathetic?

A Royal Procession

So she wasn't crowned at the Oscars. Yet as her seven nominations attest, "Elizabeth" (PolyGram, available now) is a royal treat.

This opulent and often bloody period piece puts a slight feminist gloss on the early reign of the 16th-century British ruler Queen Elizabeth I (Cate Blanchett, above). It's dazzling entertainment, full of romance and intrigue. Blanchett is sensational as the radiant young woman who transforms into a chilly monarch.

Of course, staying girl-ish can be downright enticing. And nobody does it better than Meg Ryan. In "You've Got Mail" (Warner, May 4), Ryan reunites with "Sleepless in Seattle" costar Tom Hanks, who plays the mogul of a giant bookstore chain that's threatening to crush Ryan's bookshop. These sworn enemies are also, unbeknownst to them, e-mail best friends.

Director Nora Ephron's reworking of 1940's "The Shop Around the Corner" gets a rifty '90s spin, and the Ryan-Hanks chemistry borders on alchemy.

- "Stepmom" (Columbia, available now) gives us Julia Roberts as a career woman about to marry Ed Harris and inherit his two kids. Susan Sarandon is his hard-act-to-follow ex-wife.
- "Babe: Pig in the City" (Universal, May 4) isn't just for kids. In fact, with its dark cityscapes and sometimes disturbing tone, it may not be for kids at all.

- "Happiness" (Trimark, available now) is a shocking yet savagely funny look at suburbia. (Consumer alert: "shocking" as in stuff like child molesting.)
- "Taxi Driver" (Columbia, May 4; collector's edition) features a making-of documentary. This 1976 New York-noir film reminds us why Robert De Niro and Jodie Foster are first-rank stars and why Martin Scorsese is one of the century's great directors.

ROBINS

Politics and TV: Not-So-Strange Bedfellows

Conventional TV wisdom says fictional shows about politics don't work. Lawyers, yes. Doctors, yes. Wonks? No way. But White House sex scandals and big ratings for all things Monica are changing some minds. Two high-profile pilots in development for next season will put the capital squarely into prime time.

Both series candidates have producers with big name recognition: The West Wing, a behind-the-scenes look at life in the White House, is being developed for NBC by Sports Night creator Aaron Sorkin. DC, created for WB by Law & Order executive producer Dick Wolf, focuses on a group of young political hopefuls in Washington.

Viewers expecting DC to play like "Monica Goes Metrose" might be disappointed. Wolf has said his show will be no Clinton a clef, and scriptwriter John August ("Go") has described the DC characters as "smart and idealistic." In fact, the pilot script actually attempts to restore some luster to the pursuit of politics. Not that DC is above exposing a little flesh. In its opening scene, the script features two of the show's young hunks discussing their ambitions—while showering at the local gym. Later in the locker room, the guys gossip about a congressional staffer who was fired after sharing an elevator with real-life former congressman (and ex-Love Boat actor) Fred Grandy and saying, "Lido deck, please."

While there is a modicum of sexual tension throughout the script as the cast is introduced and future liaisons foreshadowed, DC eschews the adult fare that filled the Starr Report.

The pilot for West Wing offers a decidedly different take on Washington.

Sorkin has written a script stuffed with bedroom antics, marijuana smoke and such hot-button issues as abortion, anti-Semitism and the extreme radical right. In an early scene, the White House's deputy communications director, known for having an overactive libido, has a one-night-stand with a joint-toking call girl.

Even the show's casting is likely to draw attention: The guy in bed with the prostitute is played by Rob Lowe, whose own infamous sexual escapade was captured on videotape in 1988 when the actor was in Atlanta for the Democratic National Convention.

But Sorkin says he has avoided being overly topical. "I tried to write a script that was more timeless than timely," he says. "There's no character that is Stephanopoulos or a certain intern. It is really about palace intrigue, about what we imagine goes on that doesn't make it into the news."

With the pilot script also including some heated words between the president character (played by Martin Sheen) and a Christian Coalition-like antiabortion group, Sorkin (whose screenplay for "The American President" provided a sympathetic portrait of a Democratic president) is well aware that he could come under attack as being a typical show business left-winger. He insists that West Wing will target all points on the political spectrum.

"In reality," Sorkin says, "I'm much more inclined to make fun of Hollywood limousine liberals than the Christian right. How could I do [a show] like this and not find fertile material there?"

Longtime CNN Reporter Arnett Exits

Peter Arnett has filed his last dispatch for CNN. The most celebrated of the network's so-called Boys of Baghdad (who gained fame for coverage of the Persian Gulf War), Arnett has been dismissed by Ted Turner's news organization. The question is where will the 18-year CNN veteran go?

Insiders at ABC, CBS, NBC, MSNBC and Fox News say their networks have not had discussions about hiring the veteran reporter. Arnett fell out of favor at CNN after serving as the correspondent on chairman and CNN founder Ted Turner stepped in to defend his longtime correspondent.

In the aftermath of the Tailwind scandal, only one Arnett report was broadcast on CNN. He was absent from the network's coverage of the war in Yugoslavia even though he had requested the assignment. "[The press] kept asking, 'Why isn't he in Yugoslavia?'" says a CNN insider. "We knew after Tailwind it would be hard to use him over there, and we didn't want the story of our coverage of the war to simply become 'Where is Peter Arnett?' We had to do something to be fair to all involved."

CNN initially told reporters that Arnett was not sent to the Balkans because he lacked expertise of the region, but Arnett fired back with a list of Balkan stories he had reported. Apparently, his dismissal had been in the works for some time. In an April 19 statement announcing his departure, Arnett noted "his long and wonderful relationship with CNN." In the same announcement, CNN News Group chairman Tom Johnson said CNN was "grateful for [Arnett's] contributions [to the network]."

No Playing Favorites!

If a difference of opinion is what makes a horse race, then Louisville's Churchill Downs should have a beauty for the 125th Kentucky Derby (May 1, ABC, 4:30 P.M./ET).

A full starting gate of 20 top 3-year-olds, some shipping from halfway around the world, is expected to compete in the Derby before a crowd of 140,000 or more. Which Thoroughbred will hit the wire first? Opinions abound.

"We've got good, solid horses like so many other guys," says trainer D. Wayne Lukas, who will enter

Cat Thief and Charismatic in the Derby. "We're not overpowering, but neither is anybody else."

The Derby's one-and-a-quarter-mile distance is a grueling test for horses, with a $1 million pot and, for the winner, a shot at Thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown.

If the Derby victor goes on to win the Preakness two weeks later at Pimlico in Baltimore and the Belmont three weeks after that at New York's Belmont Park, its owner collects a $5 million bonus.

No horse has won all three races since Affirmed in 1978. And no betting favorite has won the Derby since Spectacular Bid in 1979.

"There are no Spectacular Bids out there," Lukas assures.

A Derby victory would be Lukas's third in the '90s—a goal also being pursued by trainers Bob Baffert and Nick Zito.

Baffert (below) is loaded for bear with General Challenge and Prime Timber, who finished first and second, respectively, in the Santa Anita Derby. They should go off as the top choices in the wagering. Zito is expected to compete with Stephen Got Even and Adonis, both big winners in their last races.

Local favorite? That would be Menifee, victor in the Blue Grass Stakes, who will have Churchill Downs's all-time leading rider, Pat Day, on board. His owner, Arthur Hancock III, hails from one of Kentucky's legendary racing families.

Other prime contenders include Vicar, gutsy winner of the Florida Derby, and Kimberlite

Hot colt: Prime Timber training for the Santa Anita Derby

Pipe, who captured the Louisiana Derby in a photo finish.

Worldly Manner and Aljabr, a pair of American-bred colts trained in the Middle Eastern state of Dubai, add intrigue to the event.

To date, only three fillies have won the Run for the Roses, a reference to the floral blanket draped over the horse in the Derby's winner's circle. This year, Calvin Klein Inc. CEO Barry K. Schwartz hopes that nothing comes between his filly Three Ring and the roses.

One other expected distaff Derby factor: the colt K One King, the only horse in the running with a female trainer. Akiko Gothard trains him for Madeleine and Allen Paulson, who owned the 1995 and '96 Horse of the Year, Cigar—winner, at one point, of 16 straight races.

Of course, Cigar didn't run in the Derby.

Ed Fountain covers Thoroughbred racing for the New York Post.

SUSAN STEWART'S HITS & MISSES

Brief Reviews of This Week's Notable Programs

MOMS (Sun., PBS) B "I must be a mother," says one of the 50 women interviewed in this mesmerizing special, "because I cry all the time." The epic of maternity, from fetus to grandchildren, is explored as mothers share their pain—and joy. They describe childbirth, retarded sons and daughters who want to pierce their tongues. Some moms are heroic. Others, like the mom who claims her son still loves her even though she once broke a bat over his leg, will make you feel good by comparison. That's a fine Mother's Day gift. My score (0-10): 8

SPORTS NIGHT (Tues., ABC) B Dana wants to sleep with Casey, but she's engaged to Gordon, who slept with Sally, who slept with Casey.... The fact that the love lines of this sitcom are tougher to read than box scores is evidence that it's not really about sports: It's a soap opera! In the season finale, Dana has a romantic crisis, Casey has a parenting crisis and there's a debate about ninth-inning rallies. Night is so ingratiating, these characters seem like old friends after one short season. My score: 9

DOWN WILL COME BABY (Tues., CBS) B Dad has to go to L.A. on business and Mom is stuck in Denver, which leaves their 12-year-old home with a psychopathic sitter. This toxic little TV-movie preys on the same fears as "The Hand That Rocks the Cradle" but without style, wit or Rebecca De Mornay. Meredith Baxter is the mother whose professional aspirations endanger her child. "I wasn't thinking about the family, I was thinking about me," she's made to mewl. Diana Scarwid makes a creepy sitter, but the real horror is that movies like this are still made in the era of two-income families. My score: 2

Bates and Lithgow in 3rd Rock From the Sun

3RD ROCK FROM THE SUN (Tues., NBC) B Is the jig almost up for John Lithgow and his fellow aliens? In this episode, Don the cop, who's no rocket scientist, realizes their names are "Tom, Dick and Harry." But "that doesn't mean it's a calculated attempt on our part to seem average," Tommy snaps. The tension mounts when guest star Kathy Bates acts on her own suspicions. Things look dicey for the crew until Bates turns out to be nuttier than they are. Rock continues to mine its aging premise for new laughs, and why not? It has an entire solar system to lampoon. My score: 7

IT'S LIKE, YOU KNOW... (Wed., ABC) B People talk so fast in this new sitcom, it feels like an action show. Unlike their phrase-coining Seinfeld ancestors, Know's hyperfluent four speak in full wisecracks. Here are two from this week: Paranoia is good because "at least you think people are paying attention to you"; and looking for a meaningful relationship in L.A. is "like going to London for dental work." Know is as self-conscious and as precious as a couchful of pillows needle-pointed with witty sayings. But there's a gap between witty and funny, and sitcoms ought to be funny. My score: 4

*Day and time of broadcast may vary in some areas.

Gretzky: The iceman goeth.

Less Is More

Wayne Gretzky retired, and Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto was shut down. Otherwise, the NHL's 1998-99 regular season was undistinguishable from any other bag of carrots on the produce stand.

By the way, when a league's regular season is most notable for farewell ceremonies for a player and an arena, that's not at all good. By the end of this century, the NHL was supposed to have emerged as America's hottest TV-fueled sport. Unfortunately, the NHL ensured that no such thing could happen.

The NHL's 82-game regular season is designed for team owners, not hockey fans. From the outset, the only compelling stories the season guarantees are sorry financial shape doesn't mean a thing. The NHL, like the NFL, MLB and NBA, is addicted to expansion, specifically the tens of millions of dollars in buy-in fees that are used to wash the buy-in debt of the previous expansion-team owners.

Sounds like a pyramid scheme, doesn't it? One in which a league commissioner becomes a debt-service manager for team owners, as opposed to a guardian of the best interests of his sport.

This year's lockout-shortened NBA season may have provided some perverse and reverse playoff races to determine the eighth best team in each conference. Sixteen of 27 teams qualify. Two, Edmonton and San Jose, qualified to win this year's Stanley Cup after losing more games than they won.

In case you think the NHL has learned anything, the league will shortly expand to 30 teams. That several current NHL franchises are in lessons. Yeah, the squeezed schedule has guaranteed some rotten basketball. Three games in three nights will do that. But in an NBA season that has been reduced to 50 games, there is an incentive to play winning basketball that wouldn't exist in an 82-game schedule. With 39 percent fewer regular season games being played, each game becomes 39 percent more significant.

Not that anything will change for the better. Already, Edmonton Oilers general manager Glen Sather is thinking out loud about expanding the NHL playoffs from 16 to 20 teams. "How many bad playoff games are there in round one?" he asks.

Excellent point. If good games are what the NHL sells, let's abandon the regular season and start with the playoffs.

Mushnick RAVE

For 12 years, Dan Dierdorf annoyed Monday Night Football viewers with "Now hear this!" declarations and "I've been to the mountaintop!" sermons. Dumped by ABC, Dierdorf will resurface on CBS's NFL telecasts. Dierdorf first caught ABC's eye while at CBS—as a learned football commentator, not a self-promoter. CBS has given Dierdorf a chance at redemption. Good. Older and most likely wiser, he's worth the gamble.

THE RUN FOR THE ROSES

According to Daily Racing Form handicapper Mike Watchmaker, trainer "Bob Baffert's attempt to win his [record] third straight Derby is only one of the big stories" this year. Top horses in the Baffert stable include San Felipe Stakes winner Prime Timber ("a very narrow favorite," says Watchmaker); and Santa Anita Derby champ General Challenge ("a close second choice"). Also expected to make news is Sheikh Mohammed of Dubai. He has several possible entries, including Worldly Manner, a horse he bought from Baffert. "He's dominated in Europe for years, but this is his first attempt to win an American classic," says Watchmaker. (Live)

MOVIE CLOSE-UP

M+ THE X-FILES (CC)
SAT. 8 PM (HBO)

Anderson, Duchovny

Mulder: "You told me you had answers!" Covert informant Kurtzweil: "Yeah, Well, I don't have 'em all."

Though there are no absolute answers in this 1998 big-screen version of the TV show, it seemed to satisfy most fans while still being entertaining enough for the uninitiated. The basics: an explosion at a Federal building sends Scully and Mulder (Gillian Anderson, David Duchovny) on the trail of "the plague to end all plagues," which is alien in origin. Their pursuit leads to the Antarctic, where lingering questions from the series are resolved—while others are posed. Rated PG-13 for violence. (2-9)

Rosie O'Donnell

Rosie O'Donnell hosts the 12th annual gala. "It's the fastest 90 minutes you'll ever see... and the loudest," says executive producer Mark Oltz of the unique awards show in which kids from around the country select their favorites in a total of 16 categories that span TV, sports, movies, music, video games and books, and then vote for the winners. A new category this year is Favorite Rising Star. While the celebrity presenters had not been announced at press time, the music acts set to appear include TLC, 'N Sync and Britney Spears. Also new this year is the theme song, written by Babyface and performed by 3rd Storee. (Live, 1:30)

MARTIAL LAW
(CC) SAT. 9 PM (7)

Sammo's evil nemesis, Lee Hei (Tzi Ma), returns for the two-part season finale of the TV Guide Award winner for favorite new series.

In Part 1, Sammo (Sammo Hung, pictured) stumbles upon a $20 million opium deal after a drug bust involving a woman who turns out to be Hei's daughter. The pair are in town to find a buyer for a large shipment of unprocessed opium—but Sammo keeps thwarting their efforts. When Hei discovers that Master Reng (Mako), who instructed both men in martial arts, is in Los Angeles, he uses the visit to threaten Sammo. "Your love for him is your greatest weakness," snarls Hei. TV GUIDELINES

Recommended Viewing...

☐ Movie: Gwyneth Paltrow plays a woman whose fate turns on whether she catches her subway in "Sliding Doors," a clever ★★ 1998 comedy. See Editors' Choice on p. 101. —8 PM SHO

☐ Movie: Goldie Hawn, Bette Midler and Diane Keaton star as the feisty founders of "The First Wives Club," a ★★ 1996 comedy about scorned spouses who plan to get even with their exes. Sarah Jessica Parker is excellent as one of the harebrained "other women." See Editors' Choice on p. 109. —9 PM 7 13

Also of Note...

☐ Forgotten Fires, a moving, atmospheric chronicle of the burning of two black churches in one South Carolina town in 1955. —5 AM 16; 10 PM 13

☐ Touched by an Angel: Civil-rights heroine Rosa Parks appears as herself in a poignant story about racism. See the Close-up on p. 100. —8 PM 7 13

☐ Dolphins and cockles and whales, oh my! Wild Europe, a six-hour survey of the continent's wildlife, begins with "Wild Seas." —8 PM 6; 9 PM 16 13

☐ Movie: Jon Voight stars in "Noah's Ark," a disappointing two-part 1999 TV epic that features a multitude of animals, seen mostly in pairs. F. Murray Abraham and Carol Kane play Lot and his wife, who argue like a vaudeville comedy team (e.g. "I didn't know what happiness is until I married you. Now, it's too late."). See the Close-up on p. 105. —9 PM 6 22 13

☐ Celebrate the Century is a 10-part retrospective that begins by examining 1900-14, and features music by trumpeter Wynton Marsalis. —9 PM CNN

BLACK LIKE MONICA

Civil-rights pioneer Rosa Parks appears as herself in a story about racism, in which Monica (Roma Downey, winner of the 1999 TV GUIDE Award for Favorite Actress in a Drama) experiences life as an African-American. Monica's journey begins when she discovers Tess sitting by a country road holding a noose in her hands. Near them is the body of an elderly black man whose vicious murder was committed to disrupt a local civil-rights celebration. When Tess angrily looks to the heavens and refuses to take on the assignment, Monica steps in—not knowing that the assignment will require her to become black. Tom: John Ritter. (1:00)

John Hannah,
Gwyneth Paltrow

A subway car proves pivotal in this delightful 1998 romantic comedy that juxtaposes potential destinies in the life of one woman.

Gwyneth Paltrow plays Helen, a Londoner living with her novelist boyfriend (John Lynch). One morning, Helen's fired from her job. En route home, she barely makes her train—or does she just miss it? Both scenarios unfold, as the earlier Helen meets a handsome passenger (John Hannah), then finds her beau with another woman. The later Helen is unaware of his infidelity. As the two Helens deal with their lives, their two fates take surprising directions. Rated PG-13, strong language, sexual situations. (1:40)

PART 1 OF TWO
Jon Voight

Executive producer Robert Halmi Sr. (Martin) brings the biblical story to the small screen in this 1999 TV-movie, employing a bit of poetic license, special effects and humor. Jon Voight gives an earnest portrayal of the man God chose to build a vessel that would survive the Flood. When Noah comments on the ark being huge, God responds, "I think big. I made the world in six days." Mary Steenburgen plays Noah's wife, Naamah; F. Murray Abraham and Carol Kane squabble as Lot and his spouse; and James Coburn makes an appearance as a peddler. Bette Midler

Goldie Hawn, Diane Keaton and Bette Midler play jilted wives who vow to make their spouses pay for dumping them in this entertaining office hit.
The scheming starts after the ladies—reunited at a college pal's funeral—exchange matrimonial war stories: Elise (Hawn) has an ex who leaves alimony; Annie (Keaton) has a mate who leaves a divorce; and Brenda (Midler) is being seduced by her husband and his lover. The gals take countermeasures—and solidarity—and decide to get their own dirty laundry and hang the fellow around to dry. It's a plan, the plotters assert, to get more about justice than revenge. Vivian Shudde

Some 50 mothers let their hair down in this alternately amusing and poignant hour.
It includes four profiles but consists mostly of moms simply facing the camera and talking about motherhood. They relate their experiences dealing with subjects that range from childbirth ("It is an out-of-body experience," one says) to the death of a child. Other topics include disciplining kids, talking about sex, and teens leaving the nest. Vivian Shudde says that her having a mentally handicapped child does not deter her from being a "fun mother." "If you just don't take motherhood too seriously," she says, "you'll have a blast." (1:00)

TV GUIDELINES

Recommended Viewing...

□ Moms talk shop in this warmhearted documentary. See Editors' Choice on p. 109.—5 AM (6), 11:30 PM (6) [5]

□ Movie: Sean Connery, Nicolas Cage and Ed Harris star in 1996's "The Rock," a ★★ action flick that was among the year's top-grossing films. See Editors' Choice on p. 134.—8 PM (2) [5] [5]

Also of Note...

□ It's a story straight from the headlines as a pro wrestler (played by Terry Hogan) runs for office as a Suddenly Susan two-partter begins. The problem is, his opponent drops dead, tagging the bruiser for certain victory...until Susan intervenes. See the Close-up on p. 126.—8 PM (6) [5]

□ The four male leads of CBS's Monday night sitcom lineup appear in a crossover story that begins on Cosby when Hilton turns up in Becker's waiting room.—8 PM (7) [5]

□ Wally Undergoes hypnosis to remember the time, back in the early '70s, when he "cared about the job," as Dilbert tackles Y2K problems. See the Close-up on p. 134.—8 PM (6) [5]

□ Everybody Loves Raymond: A nicely scripted episode revolves around Ray and Debra trying to be more polite to each other.—9 PM (7) [5]

□ Titanic: Answers from the Abyss, an in-depth look at the doomed luxury liner, reveals exactly what happened to the ship, as well as when and how it sank.—9 PM, 12 mid. (Early Tues.) [5] [5]

□ Xena: Warrior Princess meets Brutus (played by David Frankin)—and the confrontation could change the course of Roman history in a well-written episode.—10 PM (6) [5]

IN THIS CORNER...

The political candidacy of a pro wrestler is the comic premise in this two-parter, which features Terry Hogan (a.k.a. Hollywood Hulk Hogan). In Part I, it seems the candidate in question (Hogan) is a shoo-in for city supervisor after the sudden death of the incumbent. That is, until Susan (Brooke Shields) weighs the option of squaring off with the big fella. She has already attacked him in The Gate, and when he calls her out, she rises to the challenge and the grudge match is on. The episode was filmed prior to the death in March of series regular David Strickland, which will be addressed in the show's season finale. Vicki: Kathy Griffin.

THE ROCK (CC) TV
MON. 8 PM (2) (3)

Nicolas Cage, Sean Connery and Ed Harris star in this relentless 1996 thriller about an FBI mission to break into Alcatraz.

Cage is cast as an FBI biochemist; Connery as a former British agent and the only man to ever break out of Alcatraz. Their mission: infiltrate the prison, which has been commandeered by a disgruntled Marine general (Harris), and disarm an arsenal of chemical weapons aimed at San Francisco. Although the plot is nothing more than a variation on "Die Hard," the high-caliber acting and director Michael Bay's furiously paced action sequences more than compensate for the implausible premise. Y2K
 Catbert

Jason Alexander returns as the voice of Catbert in a fine episode in which Dilbert and the gang tackle the company's Y2K dilemma.

When human resources director Catbert learns that he'll need more people on a Y2K problem-solving team, he responds smugly, giving Dilbert a binder of recently terminated employees, labeled "Misfits and Losers," because, he explains, "they're on the payroll for two more weeks." Meanwhile, in an attempt to jar his memory, Dogbert hypnotizes Wally, who installed the company's antiquated mainframe, but who has since forgotten almost everything about it.

SEASON WRAP-UP

The critically acclaimed dramedy closes its rookie season with a memorable episode that marks Isaac's return from the hospital.

Robert Guillaume's character—written out after the actor had a stroke in January—returns to CSC to find Dana (Felicity Huffman) in full meltdown mode. And with good cause. After learning last week that fiancé Gordon slept with another woman, Dana is dealt another blow: Gordon calls her on her infatuation with Casey (Peter Krause), and makes a move that leaves her primed for a public display of rage. Meanwhile, Casey has problems of his own when his son claims a mysterious baseball victory.

TV GUIDELINES

Recommended Viewing...

- ☐ Movie: Reese Witherspoon, Toby Maguire and a stellar Joan Allen bring colorful performances to "Pleasantville," a ★★ 1998 fable. —9:30 PM [68]
☐ Julia Roberts plays a woman who—just as in real life—is attracted to Benjamin Bratt in a strong Law & Order episode that also features good performances by Daniel Hugh Kelly and Edward Herrmann, who play an entrepreneur and his lawyer. See Editors' Choice on p. 184. —10 PM [3] [22] [23]

Also of Note...

- ☐ Family ties are sorely tested on this heartfelt Dawson's Creek as Jen's angry grief over a sudden death finally exhausts Gram's patience. Meanwhile, Dawson fears his parents may never reunite. See the Close-up on p. 176. —8 PM [65] [WGN], 9 PM [30] [22]
☐ Songs from the skyrocketing Dixie Chicks and Jo Dee Messina highlight the 34th Academy of Country Music Awards, with both acts nominated for Newcomer and Album of the Year. See the Close-up opposite this page. —8 PM [7] [12]
☐ Tchaikovsky's timeless "Swan Lake" receives a traditional staging in a Live from Lincoln Center production by the New York City Ballet. —8 PM [5], 9 PM [43], 3 AM [Early Thurs.] [18]
☐ Party of Five: In a compelling storyline, Julia gets more involved with Perry (Olivia D'Abo), who's not entirely at ease with the dating fan. Also, Charlie finally resolves his feelings for Kirsten. See the Close-up on p. 176. —9 PM [45] [15] [60]
☐ Hendrix: Band of Gypsies chronicles Jimi Hendrix's electrifying psychedelic-proto-funk band. —10 PM [16] [18]

9 PM (4N)

Joshua Jackson,
Meredith Monroe

Relationships shift—and one buckles—when death claims one of CapeSide's own.

As students don armbands to remember the deceased, Jen (Michelle Williams) bitterly denounces what she sees as their hypocrisy toward a person most were careful to avoid. Meanwhile, Andie (Meredith Monroe) agonizes as one person accuses her of contributing to the fatal accident and another asks her to give the eulogy. She agrees to speak but a worried Pacey (Joshua Jackson) urges her to back out, afraid she'll resurrect the pain of her brother's death. Joey is reliving similar anguish, as the tragedy stirs memories of the loss of her mother. (1:00)

CONFUSION

Olivia D'Abo,
Neve Campbell

Various relationships undergo stress in this episode. A conflicted Claudia, trying to avoid being alone with Cody (Chad Todhunter), inadvertently disrupts plans for Bailey's dinner party to promote the restaurant. There, Sarah encounters a problem with a guest. Meanwhile, Kirsten is offered a terrific position in Chicago, and Charlie approves—but she doesn't want him to. And Julia's tentative friendship with writer Perry Marks (Olivia D'Abo) grows after her less-than-stellar review of one of Perry's stories. Julia's suggestions earn Perry's gratitude, which leads Julia to respond in a manner confusing to both of them. Josh: Adam Scott. (1:00)

Julia Roberts

Julia Roberts guest stars as a fund-raiser who's involved in a millionaire's murder in the series' 200th episode. The case centers on the death of an important investor in a sports arena that entrepreneur Sanford Spector (Daniel Hugh Kelly) is about to build. Roberts' character claims that she has evidence related to the murder and the only person she can trust is Curtis (Benjamin Bratt). He's assigned to accompany her to a motel that's used as a police-department hide-away and, once there, why she insists that she's too frightened to be left alone. It soon becomes clear, however, why she wants him to stay when she tells him, "I'm attracted to you, Rey." (1:00)

McConaughey

Seething racial tensions underscore this 1996 courtroom drama, which recalls the Southern milieu of "To Kill a Mockingbird" and the legal fireworks of "Anatomy of a Murder."

The story, based on John Grisham's first novel, is set in present-day Mississippi, where a confident and caring white lawyer (Matthew McConaughey) defends a poor black man (Samuel L. Jackson) charged with killing the two white thugs who raped his 10-year-old daughter. Complicating the defense: the ugly reemergence of the Ku Klux Klan. Ellen: Sandra Bullock; Buckle: Kevin Spacey; Ethel: Brenda Fricker; Sheriff: Charles S. Dutton. (3:00)

FRIDAY

TV GUIDELINES

Recommended Viewing...

Movie: Many of the delightful characters from "Beauty and the Beast" return in 1997's "Belle's Magical World," a trio of animated tales. —7 PM (D)

Movie: Meryl Streep and Renee Zellweger are outstanding as a dying mother and her daughter in 1998's "One True Thing," a ★★ drama. —11:30 PM (D)

Also of Note...

Movie: Bill Paxton and Charlize Theron star in 1998's "Mighty Joe Young," a ★★ remake of the 1949 classic about a 15-ft. gorilla. —8 PM, 2 AM [Early Sat.] (D)

Movie: Mother's Day is celebrated the Candid Camera way on back-to-back episodes. —9 PM (7, D)

Movie: Matthew Modine, Christopher Lloyd and Marlo Thomas lead an ensemble cast that keeps "The Real Blonde" from fading. The ★★ 1997 satire comments on the world of show business. —9 PM (D)

Sheppard and Ballard (Michael Michele, Callie Thorne) are partners in this well-written episode of Homicide: Life on the Street. —10 PM (D, 22, D)

Movie: Jennifer Tilly is a hoot as the voice of the "Bride of Chucky" in this demented, tongue-in-cheek ★★ 1998 horror flick, the fourth and funniest in the "Child's Play" series. —10 PM, 4 AM [Early Sat.] (D)

Mickey Mantle comes in at No. 37 on the SportsCentury: Top 50 Countdown. —10:30 PM (D)

Everybody may love Raymond, but doctors might have a change of heart after Ray Romano talks to Dennis Miller about medicine men. —11:30 PM (D, D)

TV GUIDE'S STAR RATINGS

In this feature, theatrical movies are accompanied by star ratings of ★★★★★ (excellent), ★★★★ (good), ★★★ (fair) or ★★ (poor). Our evaluations are based on a number of factors, including a consensus of leading critics, quality of cast and director, awards earned and box-office performance. Though movies may be added to television, our ratings are based on the original, complete film. The absence of stars indicates an unrated movie. TV GUIDE does not evaluate movies if the criteria cannot be applied because too few facts are known (example: a minor foreign film), or if the film is made for television to mislead directly to video.

PARENTAL GUIDANCE

The official MPAA content rating (G, PG, PG-13, R or NC-17) is provided for every unrated film that has received one (NR, not rated). We also offer advisories about content (AT = adult themes, N = nudity, IL = strong language, SS = sexual situations, V = violence). Parents should be aware that films containing adult themes in sexual situations frequently involve nudity, even though our advisory may not explicitly say so.

THE TV GUIDE HOROSCOPE

By SALLY BROMPTON

ARIES (March 21-April 20): Some things are worth fighting for and some are not, and there is no point in sticking your neck out over a financial dispute that you have little chance of winning. Far better to back down gracefully and admit that you got it wrong.

For your extended Aries horoscope, call: 1-800-625-5064

TAURUS (April 21-May 21): A difference of opinion with a loved one may seem to have been resolved, but, according to your solar chart, it's merely a temporary respite. For the moment, keep something in reserve—and your feelings to yourself.

For your extended Taurus horoscope, call: 1-800-625-5064

GEMINI (May 22-June 21): With so many pleasurable distractions highlighted in your horoscope this week, your biggest problem will be to find time for your commitments. Whatever happens, don't try to take on more than you can handle.

For your extended Gemini horoscope, call: 1-800-625-5064

CANCER (June 22-July 23): Energetic Mars moves back into the domestic angle of your chart this week, giving you a second chance to come to grips with a home or family matter. But don't rely on your normally sound judgment: nothing will be quite as it seems.

For your extended Cancer horoscope, call: 1-800-625-5064

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23): You usually have a clear idea of what you're trying to achieve, but cosmic forces suggest that this time you're likely to get it wrong. You can plan your next objective in the days ahead, but hold off on trying to attain it.

For your extended Leo horoscope, call: 1-800-625-5064

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23): A long-distance journey is unlikely to go according to plan this week, but the outcome could put you on a different route, and not just in terms of location. Uranus's unpredictable influence will make you appreciate that there's more to travel than catching a plane.

For your extended Virgo horoscope, call: 1-800-625-5064

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23): Enterprising Mars moves back into your birth sign this week, enabling you to catch up on unfinished business. It should, however, be an opportunity to demonstrate your famous diplomacy rather than to browbeat others into submission.

For your extended Libra horoscope, call: 1-800-625-5064

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23): Don't let your paranoia get the better of you this week—especially when it comes to your closest relationships at home and work. Certain people may appear to be unhelpful, but might it not be because they have more important matters on their minds?

For your extended Scorpio horoscope, call: 1-800-625-5064

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21): Partners and colleagues seem to be more concerned than you are about the smooth running of a project close to your heart. Do you have other worries or are you simply losing interest? Stick to your original agenda.

For your extended Sagittarius horoscope, call: 1-800-625-5064

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 20): Your life should be rather more enjoyable than you think, according to your solar chart. So why are you feeling dispirited? The answer owns more to your attitude than to external influences. By next week, your mood will have changed.

For your extended Capricorn horoscope, call: 1-800-625-5064

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19): Don't reject the support of someone in a position of influence when it could turn out to be just what you need to reach a goal. Your reputation counts for more than you sometimes think. Nurture it—and the people who recognize its worth.

For your extended Aquarius horoscope, call: 1-800-625-5064

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20): Despite your wonderful imagination, you sometimes get stuck with ideas or routines that are well past their sell-by dates. Now, with the planets encouraging you to improve your circumstances, you must be prepared to move with the times.

For your extended Pisces horoscope, call: 1-800-625-5064
